The Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius Loyola 19th Annotation Retreat

Do you want to find God's will in your life and enjoy the freedom to follow it? Saint Ignatius designed a retreat, known as the Spiritual Exercises, to help people deepen their relationship with Jesus Christ and grow in the inner freedom they need to discern where God is truly calling them. Though he envisioned it as a 30-day silent retreat, Ignatius realized that not everyone could step away from their responsibilities for an extended time and so he wrote into the Exercises a provision (the 19th Annotation) for busy people who wanted to make "the retreat in daily life". The 19th Annotation is experienced through a one-on-one relationship with a spiritual director. You meet weekly and make a commitment to in-depth daily prayer. Over the course of about nine months, you make your way through the retreat at your own pace. Though it is for busy people, it is a very significant undertaking and a richly worthwhile one! Please contact the Coordinator of the Spiritual Exercises at St. Agnes' Ignatian Spiritual Life Center, Barbara Nelson, at barbarajnelson3@gmail.com or 415-728-8939 to discern if this retreat may be right for you.

Lights and Shadows

Welcome to our new Eucharistic ministers in the hospital: Deborah Dacumos, MaryAnn Ring and Robert "Bob" Gajewski. We thank them for their support and commitment to the infirm. They are now also active parishioners of St. John of God Church.

We are likewise blessed to be given another catholic priest hospital chaplain in the person of Fr. Hoang Trinh. He is very youthful and energetic in his ministry.

Martina, a sick 15 year old young girl suffering from ALL leukemia was chatting with me:

Martina: What is your breakfast Fr. Norman?

Me: Oh, just salad.

Martina: Only that?

Me: Yes. I have no other food.

Martina: Why is that so?

Me: No one gave me food except some bread.

Martina: Yes that's good. Jesus is the bread of life!

Coming from a sick girl who is in desperate need of health hoping to have a positive result from a bone marrow transplant soon, she could still affirm this reality. Wow!

When she could have all the reasons to complain about how she was robbed of her youth and her spirit. By her words, she is not riveted on what she lacks, but on what suffices her. The BREAD of LIFE.

As I try to recall the rich man in the gospel who asked Jesus on what he still lacks in following him, and after satisfying all the commandments, he went away sad because Jesus asked him to sell what he has and give to the hapless. But then he went away sad...

Martina may not be happy with her condition. She trusts to get well of course. Only she doesn't frown and fret in life. She never complains either. She gives up not because she is resigned but because she leaves up everything to God. As if telling God, my life is yours not mine.

The rich man seemingly had it all. Goodness and kindness. Richness too. Only he couldn't feel contented because he couldn't sell his wealth. He is more concerned about the bread of the world than the bread of life. As if telling God, this is my life not yours.

At the end of the day, it is not what we receive in excess or what we lack in life that counts. It is our willingness to give up on things we either receive or not.

To look beyond what is not there...

To be grateful, eternally grateful for what is and what is not.

~ Fr. Norman
